

CHRISTMAS AT THE CATHEDRAL

Bishop Van de Vyver Will Celebrate Pontifical High Mass at 11 A. M.

SPECIAL MUSICAL PROGRAM

Celebration of Feast Will Occur To-Day in Many Richmond Churches.

Special Christmas services will be held to-day in many Richmond churches. Beautiful musical programs will be rendered by the choirs and the services of the pastors will treat appropriate themes. Catholic and Episcopal churches will hold their Christmas services on the great holiday.

At the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart, on Christmas Day, at 11 A. M., the Right Rev. Bishop Van de Vyver will celebrate Pontifical High Mass, assisted by priests from the different parishes of the city. Four times each year the bishop pontificates at solemn high mass, at the end of which he imparts the papal benediction, the other three occasions besides Christmas being Easter, Pentecost and December the 31st. The bishop will be assisted by the following priests: Rev. J. B. O'Reilly, pastor of Sacred Heart Cathedral, assistant to the bishop; Rev. T. Wilson, of St. Peter's Church; Rev. J. J. O'Reilly, of St. Joseph's Church; second deacon of honor; one of the priests of the city, deacon of the mass; Rev. John J. Massey, of Sacred Heart Cathedral, sub-deacon; Rev. Albert Goetz, O. S. B., of St. Mary's Church, will be first master of ceremonies, with Brother Charles as second master of ceremonies. The altar boys on ceremonies will be all those of the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart.

The Christmas sermon at the Pontifical Mass will be preached by the Rev. John J. Massey, the eloquent young priest of the new cathedral parish. The 11 o'clock services will no doubt draw a large assembly of people. At this service the positions of the altar boys, under the direction of Brother Charles, will be as follows:

First acolytes—J. Kelly and L. Koster. Second acolytes—E. Biley and E. Oles. Censer-bearer—T. Smith. Apron-bearer—J. Matthews. Vesting-bishop—L. Ferrier. M. Kelly, J. Silva, J. Shook, H. Street, E. Williams, C. Meredith and E. Shaughnessy. Torch-bearers—E. Hays, R. Knightly, J. Lewis, J. Johnson, P. Heindie and J. Flanagan. Censer-bearers—J. Cramer and J. Felthaus. Host-bearers—R. Smith and W. Lyons. Mistle-bearer—L. Cramer. Train-bearers—J. Coleman and M. Walsh. Mass-bearer—P. Carroll. Candle-bearer—M. Griffin. Book-bearer—T. Brennan.

Musical Programs.

The musical programs to be rendered during the day at the cathedral are as follows:

11 A. M.—High mass, sung by boys' choir of thirty voices; Mass of St. John; (Cantata); offertory, "Adeste Fideles"; (Cantata); recessional, "Te Deum." 12 A. M.—Solemn Pontifical High Mass; Pontifical (Hymns); Mass of St. Luke; Credo; Gloria; Sanctus; Agnus Dei; (Cantata); offertory, "Adeste Fideles"; (Cantata); recessional, "Gloria to God" (Chelms); sung by male chorus of thirty voices, as follows: First tenors—Messrs. S. Adams, Walter Mahoney, William C. Nott, J. A. Grady, Thomas Holman and George Parrott; second tenors—A. F. Sauerwald, Samuel L. Lynch, C. N. Gardner, Maurice A. Powers, W. H. Adams, William Angell, Frank Ryan and C. O. Edwards; first basses—Alvin W. Smith, James A. Covardin, J. W. Hollman, Leslie Morewood and George E. Ryan; second basses—Messrs. A. M. Hays, John Kechan, W. H. Adams, M. Williams, William Flanagan and John Flanagan. Organist and director—Miss Theresa M. Donahoe.

The four weeks immediately preceding Christmas are known in the calendar of the Catholic Church as the season of Advent, or the season of preparation for the advent of the Saviour. Christmas is especially exalted during the season of Advent, and the church is privileged to celebrate during the course of one day the holy sacrifice of the mass three times.

Christmas Day is the only day in the year when visitors and priests throughout the Catholic world are privileged to celebrate during the course of one day the holy sacrifice of the mass three times.

In Fairmount.

Beautiful Christmas music will be sung this morning at Fairmount Avenue Methodist Church, under the direction of Mr. J. M. Mitchell. Voluntary, "Think, the Notes of the Angels" (choir); hymn (choir); prayer by the pastor, Rev. Hugh Taylor; offertory, "Chorus of the Angels"; Scripture lesson, "The Birth of Christ" (choir); sermon, Rev. Hugh Taylor; collection, "Gloria to Angels" (choir); postlude, organ.

The choir is composed of the following sweet singers: Soprano, Mrs. Willie Dillard, Mrs. Mary Carter, Mrs. Mary Layton, Mrs. Ernest Hecker, Mrs. Charles V. Allen, Mrs. Myrtle Hoffman, Miss Harrison Watkins, Mrs. Lewis Gentry, Tenors, Mr. Jack Laughlin, Mr. Charles

No special Christmas music will be sung to-day at the Fairmount Baptist Church, owing to the continued extreme illness of Mrs. Sadie Gary, the director and organist, but beautiful music will be sung by the choir, who have gotten together and prepared appropriate selections for the occasion.

Clay-Street Methodist.

At the Clay Street M. E. Church the musical program will be as follows:

Morning Hymn; Scripture reading; prayer; offertory, "Angels' Song"; hymn; sermon; anthem, "Hark of Angels" (William Reed); hymn; benediction.
Evening Hymn; Scripture reading; prayer; offertory, "All Thy Works Praise Thee" (Hopkins); hymn; sermon; anthem, "O Little Town of Bethlehem"; hymn; benediction.

Christmas Hours.

How Uncle Sam Will Handle the Mail Here Tuesday.

Postmaster Royal E. Cabell yesterday made public the following rules governing the handling of mails in the Richmond post-office and stations on Christmas.

Main Office.—Executive division will be closed. Stamp window will be open for sale of stamps from 8 A. M. to 1 P. M. Money order division will be closed. Registry division will be closed. Registers will be delivered by substitute carriers.

GOVERNOR WILL WORK.

His Excellency Would Enjoy a Hunt, But Is Too Busy.

"I shall remain in the city during the holiday," Governor Swanson, when asked yesterday how he would spend Christmas.

"I will spend Tuesday at the nation, but expect to work every other day during the week, as there is a good deal of matter in the office to be disposed of. I would greatly enjoy a little hunt up in Pennsylvania, but will not be able to indulge in such a luxury at this time."

FAIRMOUNT SCHOOL.

Christmas Exercises Held There on Friday Evening.

Christmas exercises were held at Fairmount Avenue Methodist Church, and a splendid program was given. The assembly was prettily decorated in green, blue and white, and other attractive decorations. The entertainment was under the auspices of Miss Cherry's pupils, and received much credit on all who had charge of the affair. The children acquitted themselves most satisfactorily.

The exercises began with reading of the Thirty-second Psalm by the class. The remainder of the program was as follows:

Recitation, "The Merry Little Mice," Thomas Hollin.
Recitation, "The Baby's Stocking," Marquette Hecker.
Recitation, "On Christmas Eve," Mary Troxler.
Recitation, "The Jolly Old Man," Blanch Duncan.
The school closed Friday until January the second.

FLURRY OF SNOW HIT BUSY CROWDS

pers stopped just long enough to snatch a hasty bite of supper, and poured out on the streets again. Again the wild, confused scramble had commenced, and the mania for buying held once more all people in its thrall. Far up Broad Street, far as the line of shops extend, back again, crossing and recrossing, eagerly looking in here, then taking a glance in there, the ceaseless, wearying feet began their march again. In the crowd were the same elements that go to make up all the maddening throngs of life, people of high and low degree, rich people, with lots to spend; poor people, with long-saved-up pennies, rapidly draining from scant purses; smartly-dressed people, people ill-dressed, big people, little people, glad people, and people all pursuing and hungering for the shadow of a job.

Up and down the streets, every one, on somebody's look, they go, chasing some elusive, Jack-o'-lantern hope, that ever as they draw near, flits a little further on, until at last, wearied out, they homeward turn their lagging feet, and seek to find in their dreams the things they most are missing in life.

No sight is more inspiring than such a crowd in pursuit of some vain quest. There one sees beautiful women, with dimpling cheeks and languid eyes, now dressed in some strain of anxiety; ill-dressed women, with rare traces of refinement in their clouded visages; strong, hearty, handsome men, and again, poor, slovenly-looking, makeshift men; young girls and boys and little tots of children, all together, en masse, running pell-mell, hither and thither, like straws in a wind.

There is neither end nor beginning to the surging, struggling mass of humanity. It moves all ways at once, never stopping save at their own bargain-counter, where a haggard-faced shopgirl waits upon their fancies.

"TENDERFOOT" HERE.

Musical Comedy Pleased Large Audience at Academy.

The bright and breezy "Tenderfoot" blew into town yesterday, and made things merry at the Academy at matinee and night performances. Both of them were well attended. This tuneful little musical comedy has been a prime favorite with Richmond audiences since its first appearance, two seasons ago, with Richard Carl in the title role.

Work in "The Burgomaster" was placed in "The Tenderfoot" by his worthy successor. He is a most capable eccentric character, both of whom are possible fun out of the lines without having to resort to horse play to amuse the audience. As Professor Pettibone, a Boston pedant who has some West in search of his health, he has a congenial role, and gives a wholly satisfying performance.

Ruth White makes a splendid Marion in appearance and possesses a voice far superior in range and quality to that of the average comic opera prima donna. Her best number, "Fascinating Venus," was well rendered and well received. Practically the same song was seen here last year supported by Miss Grace Sloan, as Patsey, and Harry Will, as Hop Lee, repeated their good work, and their novel dancing turn merited several encores.

The music is of the catchy, jingling sort, and, of course, "Mr. Alamo Love" was the most popular air. The chorus girls working overtime till the audience heard it often enough. "The Tenderfoot" will receive a hearty welcome should they return next year.

WALK AND SCULPTURE

By LORADO TAFT—No. 7

(By permission of The Chicago Record-Herald.)

Luca Della Robbia never married, but was wedded his long life through to his beautiful art. He loved it so much that it is no wonder he succeeded, until finally priests and monks and powerful nobles began to come long distances to get him to do work for them. The demand became so great that he employed other sculptors to model groups for him, after his designs. But he kept his great secret of mysterious elude to himself. He had a young nephew named Andrea, whom he loved very much. Baby Andrea was always welcome in the great shop where Luca and his assistants were busy modeling angels and saints and holy virgins. Now and then, I fancy, the little fellow was invited to sit very still while they sketched his smiling face and round baby limbs in the plastic clay. Probably not a few of Uncle Luca's pretty babies were portraits of the sturdy little nephew. It must have amused him when he was older to be told that this Christ-child and that young St. John were portraits of his own baby face.

But there was something that he liked to do much better than posing—oh, ever so much better—and that was to take a handful of plastic clay and try to model things for himself. At first the results were rather funny; the only thing that he could do very well was a little clay nest with a lot of round eggs in it. He kept on trying, however, and one day astonished the whole shop full of sculptors and apprentices by the beauty of a head which he had made. Then his uncle was delighted, indeed, and said that he should be his heir and successor, and that when he was old enough he would tell him the secret of the blue and white glaze.

Andrea worked on diligently and learned to make groups and reliefs so perfect in proportion and design, so charming in expression, that they could not be told from his uncle's best. Then the great secret was confided to him, and he became full partner in the now famous studio.

Ever since 1431, the guild of silk workers of Florence had been building an asylum for the foundlings of the city. It was just fifty years later when the Della Robbia came the last touch of its decorations. Luca was then you will remember—most conveniently for our memories—in 1480; he was, therefore, just seventy-one years old at the time. He may have superintended the work, but we know that the adorable little boy did none up in swaddling clothes were from the hands of Andrea, who was now thirty-four years old.

A baby in called a bambino in Italian and if there are two of the things, one called bambino, but we make our plurals in our own independent American way, and call these charming creatures Della

Robbia bambino. Anybody who has been abroad will know what that means; and few can hear the word without smiling, for there is nothing prettier in all Europe than that array of shiny babies hung up on the front of the Spedale degli Innocenti, as they call the asylum in their musical language. It is a long porch, or arcade, and over each post, between the arches, is one of these maidens. Each little fellow is more charming than the last; one runs back and forth trying to make up his mind as to which is his final favorite; just as if he were selecting a real baby from the large household of cherubs within. It is equally hopeless in other cases; Italian babies are so beautiful that one never could decide.

Very likely these dear, bright-faced infants, which have reached out their little hands to the passers-by and have smiled steadily for so many centuries, were portraits of Andrea's children. It was their turn now. I can imagine the whole family there—Giovanni, Girolamo, Luca, and Ambrosio—all helping, and all of them destined to become sculptors. So for many years they carried on family traditions according to the agreement with the schoolmaster, and the schoolmaster never did they make anything more appealing, more delightful than the bambino of the foundlings' home.

(This is the seventh of the series of the "Talks on Sculpture" in the Great Contest for Schoolroom Decoration. The Bambino Reliefs, 2x4 inches each, appear in Collection No. 2.)

JAMESTOWN GETS THE "101 RANCH"

Eastern Virginians Get Concessions for Big Wild West Show Next Summer.

Charles W. Beach, erstwhile manager of the Buckroe Beach Hotel and now turned exhibitor, was in the city yesterday, and announced that he had secured for the exposition the famous "101 Ranch" show, to be put on at the exposition by a company which he had gotten together. To show the magnitude of the show over five thousand dollars have already been advanced to the railroad companies for transportation alone. The show will require thirty-two cars to bring it from its home in Illinois, Oklahoma, to the Exposition grounds.

The show itself is a mammoth wild west show, and has among its performers Lucille Mulhall, the queen of cow-punchers, and her horse Governor; George Elmer, the champion trick rider of the west; The Flying Dutchman, who jumps from his horse in full career to the back of a flying steer, and throws him to the ground by twisting his nose; White Eagle, an Indian chief, who figured in Clatter's last fight; Wah-Ta-Wah, an Indian prince; Big Wolf, the highest ranking chief of the Cheyennes, and Little Hole, chief of the Poncas.

The performances of the show will be gone through twice a day, and will embrace broncho busting, larlar throwing, riding, running and shooting stunts. The arena in which the show will be held will embrace two city blocks, and will be entirely under cover. The entrance to the show will be decorated with paper, streamers and electric lights, and will present one of the features of the exposition.

The "101 Ranch" show has been a feature of every exposition in the United States for many years, and has always been a leading attraction of the exposition. It is a show that gets next to the human side of the average man, and everybody goes to see it.

WILD ANIMALS TO CELEBRATE.

Christmas week in Bostock's Wild Animal Menagerie will be celebrated with a big double bill, headed by the eight monster kings of the Arctic regions, polar bears, in an act entitled "Storming the Fort." Charlie Miller and his three highly trained performing elephants will impress thousands of patrons. Mr. Andriana and her eight tigers will be a feature of the program, and the pets of this young woman will keep the audience in expectancy all next week.

La Belle Aurora and her dance, surrounded with four huge Indian lionesses, which she handles fearlessly, will be another feature of the program. Mr. Marcena and her mixed group of lions, pumas, great Danes and hyenas, will be seen again with appreciation. The Christmas program will conclude each night with the "Burgomaster" and his group of twelve forest-bred boys, including Wallace, Baltimore, Jupiter, Nero and other ferocious beasts.

STOLE CHRISTMAS GOODS.

Thieves Carried Off Large Lot of Provisions.

Some thief, or thieves, broke into the Economy Grocery Store, 123-27 West Cary Street, early yesterday morning and stole many Christmas articles. Candy nuts, crackers, brownies, and even flour and hams, were taken. In fact, Mr. Anderson, proprietor of the store, found something missing every time he looked at a different department.

The police were notified yesterday morning, and after a careful investigation, the detectives are of the opinion that the thief was locked up in the store. The haul across the back door was removed from the inside. This could not have been taken down by any one from the outside, and the fact that it was not replaced shows conclusively that this was the method of exit.

Absolutely no clue was left upon which the detectives might work. Several boys are suspected, and may be arrested within a short time.

STREET CAR STRIKE CAUSES RIOT IN PERU

Benevolent Societies Are Helping Strikers With Supplies.

LIMA, PERU, December 22.—Street car traffic has been suspended here to-day as a result of a strike of the conductors and motormen, culminating in a conflict last night between the police and the strikers and their sympathizers. During the disturbance the police fired on the rioters, wounding several persons. The newspapers declare that the action of the police in firing on the strikers was not justified, and urged the strikers to be more prudent. The various benevolent organizations of Lima are assisting the strikers, and the butchers are furnishing them with meat and the bakers with bread free of charge.

TO PARDON PRISONERS. Justice Crutchfield Is Preparing His Christmas Lists.

Following a custom of years, Justice John Crutchfield, Monarch of the Great White Chamber of the City Hall, is now preparing a list of the names of the prisoners who will present Christmas gifts. On Monday he will hand to Sergeant Smith about three sheets of paper, and on each sheet will be about twenty-five names. The prisoners who are now in the jail will be released—many of them to return to the One John before the week is past.

It has always been the custom of His Honor to turn out the drunks and the disorderly unfortunates at Yuletide. He is making no exception this year.

"What the hell, then," he said yesterday morning, "for I've got to send them down again. They'll come back. Some of the ones I intend to let out on Monday will be here Tuesday morning. They will celebrate their release from the jail, and when they celebrate they do it in a boisterous manner. I feel sorry for them."

OFFICES REMOVED. More Room Being Made for Judges in Federal Building.

The offices of the Internal Revenue Department, which were removed into the old Shafer Building, and which were shortly being removed and refitted in the former offices of the department for use of the Federal judges.

Judge Nathan Goff, of West Virginia, will have his office on this floor, as will Judge Vaddell and the other members of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

This court has come to be a very important one in Richmond, and the judges and it necessary to have private offices and more room.

All the offices will be nicely furnished, and fitted up in the most comfortable manner.

Two New Charters. The State Corporation Commission yesterday issued the following charters: D. M. Smith Drug Company (Incorporated), Marion, D. M. Smith, president; S. H. Wolfe, vice-president; W. M. Schuler, secretary and treasurer—All of Marion, Capital, $10,000. Object, Drug business.

Virginia Lumber Manufacturing Company (Incorporated), Roanoke, R. H. Angell, president; Lena Woodley, secretary and treasurer; William G. Robertson, all of Roanoke. Capital, $40,000. Object: Lumber and building material dealers.

Christmas at Masonic Home. On Christmas Day at 4 o'clock P. M. the children of the Masonic Home will entertain their friends with the cantata "Our Prince and Saviour." A beautiful feast, loaded with gifts for each and every one, will prove a great addition to this delightful entertainment. All friends of the home are most cordially invited to come and help the little ones enjoy Christmas Day. Cars will leave Twenty-ninth and P Streets at 3:29 o'clock.

Married in Atlanta.

GERMANY DOWN ON AMERICAN CATTLE

Newspaper Says Country Has Surrendered to American Trust.

BERLIN, December 22.—The Deutsche Tageszeitung, the most important of the Agrarian organs, printed an article to-day headed: "The Surrender of Germany to the American Meat Trust." In which the writer said that information was obtained from a trustworthy source to the effect that the German-American tariff commission was discussing the importation of American live cattle into Germany by way of Hamburg, the slaughter of the cattle there and the transportation of the meat to various places in Germany in refrigerators. The paper added that it also had learned that negotiations were going on between various Hamburg shipping firms and the Hamburg authorities concerning the establishment of the necessary technical buildings. The article concluded with expressing the hope that no minister would be so foolish as to carry out a plan which would ruin Germany's cattle raising.

The American tariff commissioners are precluded from giving any information on subjects connected with the proceedings of the commission, under an agreement with the German representative, not to disclose what takes place until the report of the commission is made public in Washington.

Therefore nothing can be ascertained of factually regarding the correctness of the statements made by the Deutsche Tageszeitung, which generally is well informed.

HAD WRONG SIGN. COMPANY LOSES

Norfolk Lawyer Brings Test Suit in Unique Case and Wins It.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] NORFOLK, VA., December 22.—Because it refused to carry Lawyer Allen G. Burdow on a car with a through sign on it from Norfolk to Edgewater without compelling him to transfer, the lawyer was to-day awarded $1 and costs by Judge Hanchell in a suit for damages against the railway. The suit was brought to establish a precedent. Fifteen dollars was asked by the plaintiff. The judge ruled that failure to notify the passenger that a transfer was necessary was a neglect of duty on the part of the company, for which it was liable for damages.
